

onemedplace

OneMedPlace was created to maximize the potential of emerging life science companies through exposure to investors, partners, customers, and resources. For the first time, the latest innovations in health and medicine are all in one place. Our platform features:

- One of the largest online directories of emerging life science companies.
- Internet television network devoted to the latest innovations in health and medicine.
- Research on promising lesser known life science companies and trends in the space.
- Internet radio channel featuring interviews with company executives and investors.
- Newsletter on developments at emerging medtech and life science companies.
- Bi-annual finance conferences.

OneMedPlace offers a powerful set of communication vehicles for innovative life science companies looking to increase their visibility and maximize their potential.

OneMedTV

OneMed TV is a library of video interviews with executives, investors, entrepreneurs, and thought leaders from across the medical world. Through web video, OMP member companies can gain exposure never before possible to investors, physicians, and strategic partners that are looking to quickly learn about a company, its technology, its management team, and the market conditions for their products.

OneMedDatabase

The OneMedPlace database contains profiles for over 8,000 life science companies, business incubators, and resources. Our member companies have an enhanced, user-managed profile page in our database that displays company videos, news, contact information, links, management info, and distinguishing factors. Profile pages are keyword optimized to achieve maximum exposure in all major internet search engines.

OneMedRadio

OneMedRadio delivers “speed to knowledge” and insight on the latest innovations in health and medicine. These candid interviews with management are 10-minute “company snapshots” exploring unique technology, growth factors, market opportunity, and changing investment strategies. The audio and transcript from the interview are licensed to the company for their personal use.

OneMedForum

The OneMedPlace Finance Forums held at the beginning of January in San Francisco and mid-summer in New York provide a platform for early stage venture companies and microcap public companies to showcase unique technology in front of a group of focused investors in the space.

OneMedSentinel

The weekly newsletter is emailed to over 20,000 decision-making executives and industry insiders. Distribution includes individual investors, traders, investment firms specializing in medical technology, executives at small and large device companies, physicians, and solution providers.

Intelligence Services

OneMedPlace provides intelligence services to investors and business development executives seeking to invest in or form strategic partnerships with emerging life science companies. Our research team reports on trends in investment strategies, working with our Scientific Advisory Board to identify unique technologies and promising opportunities.

OneMedConnect

OneMedConnect is a unique partnering system in which expressed interest upon registration allows companies and investors to meet to discuss a common goal. These meetings enable the formation of valuable relationships and meaningful introductions. OneMedConnect will host a number of focused networking sessions throughout the year.
