

Build Critical Relationships

Success is engaging directly with the right people. Our bi-annual OneMedForum business development and investment conferences connect emerging companies and strategic investors. Company presentations, workshops, networking events, roundtables, and partnering services have made the Forums important events for innovative companies shaping the future.

The OneMedForum in San Francisco launched in 2008 and doubled in size every year. Over 1400 investors and executives are expected January 11th through the 13th, 2011.

The OneMedForum in New York launched in 2010. Recognizing the importance of this global summit, New York Mayor Michael Bloomberg proclaimed "OneMedForum Days" in New York. The next OneMedForum New York is June 27th-28th, 2011.

Benefits of OneMedForum participation

Companies who participate in the Forums gain access to a variety of business development tools to help them connect with investors and strategic partners:

- Use of the conference one-on-one partnering system efficiently arranges meetings between conference delegates and investors.
- Access to multimedia and video production services. OneMedTV video studio will be available to participating companies to produce high-impact video packages.
- Profile in the OneMedPlace Global Database. Six month membership to OMP, which includes full access to the research database and all website video content.
- Listing on NY OneMedForum website. Participating companies will appear on the "Companies Page" with a link to their profile on the OMP Global database.
- Profile in the conference book.
- All conference pass to the receptions and the luncheon and networking events.
- Full access to conference workshops provides direct access to leading experts and gives companies an efficient way to address critical business issues.
- Live webcast of presentations. Last year's webcast was watched by over 9,000 investors.

"We got contacts and interest from 17 investors, VC, Investment Banks and Angel Groups."

Gitte Pedersen, CEO of Genomic Expressions

"I've enjoyed the conference very much...met very interesting companies, the panel was interesting, met many VCs that we can collaborate with...saw several medical devices, companies that seemed to be interested in the space of cardiology."

Elka Nir Giza Venture Capital

"It was a great day for me because I've had the chance to meet some talented smart people who are investors and strategic companies in the industry of orthopedics."

Tony Viscogliosi, CEO of Small Bone Innovation

"I made some interesting new healthcare contacts and received interest from several traditional and non-traditional investors, both at the conference as well as one who followed up later. I look forward to your next conference."

Shan Padda, CEO Health Integrated.

Why Attend the Forum?

There is no better opportunity to directly connect with an international audience of healthcare investment professionals.

A tradition started by H&Q, San Francisco in January hosts the JP Morgan Healthcare conference, the world's largest healthcare finance conference.

Six months later in New York, the OneMedForum convenes again to bring an international audience of investors and partners to the global capital of finance and media.
