*Our researchers talk to hundreds of companies that others don't. We reduce mountains of annual reports, brochures and news releases into concise summaries in our quarterly Investment Digest and at OneMedPlace.com database*

If your livelihood depends in part upon your ability to find or follow emerging companies and opportunities in healthcare and life sciences, your life just got easier.

Whether for direct investment, to locate strategic partners or to access the best and brightest new ideas and technologies, the OneMedPlace Investment Digest gives investors and executives information on emerging companies and technologies that they might not otherwise see—or see too late.

Focusing on private companies and microcap public companies, our researchers find and profile hundreds of lesser-known but promising companies in each issue.

We search out the dynamic companies and technologies, including start-ups, spin-offs, recapitalizations and orphan public companies that larger financial institutions no longer follow.

The Investment Digest is part of an integrated suite of communications tools which make it easy for investors and others to learn about and stay apprised of developments at the most promising companies.

And underneath it all is the OneMedPlace database, the largest publicly available global database of healthcare and life science companies. It provides a powerful search function to locate companies quickly by name, sector or keyword.

If you're an investor or an executive focused on emerging opportunities in healthcare, this is a resource you can't be without. Visit OneMedPlace.com to see for yourself.
